

Home Learning Project. 1.6.20

As lockdown is drawing to a close and some of you will soon be returning to school, this week's home learning will be a suggestion of creative projects that reflect back on this time at home.

Please find below a suggestion of activities that you could do that will be a reminder of this time you have spent at home. This is your opportunity to share with us what you have been up to in the months we have been apart. We would love to see your best memories and for you to share them with us.

Please do not feel like you have to complete every activity. These are a guidance and suggestion of activities for you. Please continue to have fun at home with learning. Remember you can email us with any questions and to share your children's home learning with your class teacher.

Paint a picture.

Paint a picture of your favourite memory of your time at home. It could be an activity you did, something you made, a special day, or somewhere you visited. Ask your grown up if they can display your picture or frame it.

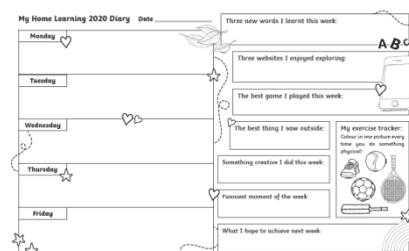

Create a family handprint keepsake.

Create a memory of handprints of everyone in your family. You could make some salt dough and print your hands in it and then paint it. You could paint your hands and print onto paper. You could draw around your hands and cut it out and stick onto paper. It might be nice to keep this as a memory so you could frame it.

Write a lockdown diary.

Write a diary about your time at home. You could draw a picture and write about your favourite memories of the past few months. What was the best creation you made at home? What was the best thing you saw on an outing? What did you learn? What was your favourite moment with your family? Did you learn any new skills?

Make a lockdown time capsule.

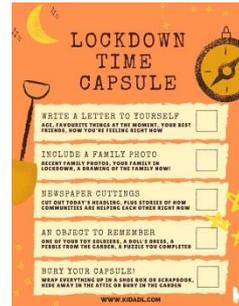

Research how to make a time capsule and find a suitable container.

Write a letter about yourself – how old you are, your name, how you are feeling, your family. Put it in the capsule.

You could include a photo of you or your family during lockdown.

You could include a newspaper from during this time.

You could put in a toy or object to remember. You could either keep the time capsule or bury it for someone to find in several years. They would learn all about this time in our lives.

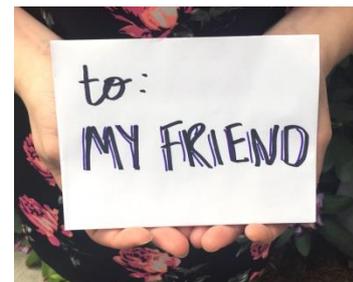

Make a scrapbook of memories.

Create a scrapbook of your favourite memories from your time at home. You could ask a grown up to print some photos that have been taken and write about them. You could stick in some drawings or paintings you have done. You could stick in something that you have made during this time. You could draw pictures and write about them.

Write a letter to a friend.

Write a letter to a friend in your class or at school. You could write about what you have been doing and ask what they have been doing. You could say what you are looking forward to doing. You could write about why you have missed them.

Create a safety poster for school.

Can you make a poster to put up in school about being safe? It could say about keeping our distance, washing our hands, waving from a distance, giving air hugs and high five. You could draw, write or paint. It would be a good way to remind people to stay safe at school.
